

4 Things Every Parent Should Know Before Choosing a Dance Studio

1. What type of dance floor is used?

Dance is a very physical activity that requires a lot of jumping, which can put stress on bones and joints. The best way to prevent against potential injury is by choosing a studio with a professional "floating floor". A floating floor is a dance floor that rests on a system of high-density foam, to absorb the shock of jumping. Our special floors help reduce the risk of injuries and allow students to dance longer without getting tired.

2. What is the size of a class?

If the dance class has fewer students in it, each child will receive more personalized attention, learn more and have more fun. Our smaller class sizes make sure that no fundamental concepts are being missed. A smaller class size also allows our teachers to ensure that students are not developing bad habits or improper technique.

3. Do I have to be in the end of the year recital?

No, our end of the year recital is completely optional. Unlike some studios that have a costume fee included in their tuition, ours is paid separately. This gives each dancer the option of participating in our recital without losing any money. Dancers are allowed to remain in the class and learn the dance combination just as if he/she would be performing it. The only difference is he/she would not be put in formations. This is specifically designed for students strictly interested in learning and not performing.

4. Can parents observe classes?

Yes, we have a designated waiting area for parents. This area has a TV with live feed from both of our classrooms. Another great way for parents to see the progress of their dancer is with our Parent Observation Week. During this week, parents are allowed to sit inside the classroom and observe their child's dance class.
